Essential Oil Test

Dear Client,

Welcome and thank you for choosing the Plasma Saal Health Centre. At Plasma Saal we combine cutting edge technologies in the field of quantum medicine with a holistic approach to human health. We are happy to offer you the Quantum Hair Sample Analysis (QSHA) – a non-invasive, detailed and quick health assessment and analysis.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Our bodies provide us with information about our emotional, mental and physical states. In the same way that the iris of an eye or a fingerprint contain unique information about each of us, hair also carries various types of energies which are a part of us. With just a small lock of hair we can assess vital information about your current health state and assist you in a healing process.

Did you know that hair grows approximately 1 cm per month and stays on a head 2-6 years before it falls out! So, a single hair sample gathers and stores all types of information about us. For example, a hair shaft (Fig. 1) absorbs and accumulates chemicals, and any toxins that our body is exposed to (e.g. food, water, air, environment).

Each of us is a unique individual, responding differently to similar environments and foods, and there is no “one-size-fits-all” formula. Therefore, the hair samples are unique bioindicators. They can, for example, reveal any mineral deficiencies, presence of heavy metals and other toxic elements, as well as food intolerance and/or nutrients overloads. Furthermore, the hair sample analysis can determine which supplements would be the best to support your health, for example homeopathic and Bach flower remedies, or types of essential oils (e.g. Young Living, doTerra).

This test identifies which essential oils are best for you to use. Essential oils are concentrated plant extracts that retain the natural smell and flavor, or “essence”, of their source. Essential oils have a broad range of health benefits and can be used for both physical and mental healing purposes.

Both companies, doTerra and Young Living, have a big range of pure and rich essential oils, which are used for aromatherapy, but can also be applied directly on skin and consumed orally.
